Please join us to meet the Washington Office on Latin American’s leadership, learn more about the organization, and hear about possible internship and work opportunities. We’ll meet at 3:30 PM in front of 2114 G Street NW and commute to WOLA.

About WOLA

WOLA is a leading research and advocacy organization advancing human rights in the Americas. WOLA envisions a future where public policies in the Americas protect human rights and recognize human dignity, and where justice overcomes violence.

WOLA tackles problems that transcend borders and that require both domestic and international solutions. Through strategic collaborations, we partner with courageous people working on social change—advocacy organizations, academics, religious leaders, artists, entrepreneurs, and government officials—and together, we advocate for more just societies in the Americas.
