DEAN’S LECTURE SERIES
ON EMERGING SCHOLARSHIP IN CRIMINOLOGY

The Limits of Resonant Frames:
ORGANIZATIONAL MOBILIZATION AGAINST RACIALLY BIASED POLICING IN FRANCE & THE UNITED STATES

Nicole Hirsch
Turpanjian Chair in Civil Society Postdoctoral Research Fellow University of Southern California

Dr. Nicole Arlette Hirsch holds the Turpanjian Chair in Civil Society & Social Change Postdoctoral Fellowship at the University of Southern California. Her research interests include race relations, social change, organizations, and comparative research. Broadly, her work considers how individuals, groups, and organizations confront stigmatization, discrimination, and racism in the United States and Europe. Dr. Hirsch currently has two research projects in progress. The first line of research builds on her doctoral work, and examines how culture and institutions shape organizational responses to racially biased policing in France and the United States. Her second project examines the role of campus-based professionalization groups in facilitating successful outcomes for doctoral students of color. Dr. Hirsch’s research has been supported by the French Embassy in the United States, the Minda de Gunzburg Center for European Studies at Harvard University, and the Mellon Mays Graduate Initiatives program. She has held affiliations with the Institute for the Study of Societal Issues and the Center for Ethnographic Research at U.C. Berkeley, and the National Institute for Demographic Studies in Paris, France. Her work has been published in the Du Bois Review, in Reviews and Critical Commentary (CritCom), and in the edited volume, Affirmative Action and Racial Equity: Considering the Fisher Case to Forge the Path Ahead. Dr. Hirsch received her Ph.D. in sociology at Harvard University and her B.A. in sociology at Columbia University.

SPONSORED BY
Department of Sociology
Columbian College of Arts & Sciences
THE GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

October 25, 2018
2:15 PM
PHILLIPS HALL, ROOM 411
DEAN’S CONFERENCE ROOM

Questions? Email soc@gwu.edu for more information.