Fulbright Visiting Scholar Jui-Hua Chen
from Taiwan will be presenting the following lecture

What is the Immigration Museum? Representations of Immigration in France and the United States

Monday, April 24th 2017 4:00-5:30PM
Phillips 411
801 22nd St.

Jui-Hua Chen is an associate professor in the Institute of Sociology and the Interdisciplinary Program of Humanities and Social Sciences at National Tsing Hua University (Hsinchu, Taiwan). He is currently a Fulbright Visiting Scholar in the Department of Sociology at Columbia University where he is working on a research project entitled “Cultural Politics in the Representation of Immigration: A Comparative Study of Immigration Museums in Different Countries in the Global World.” This project is part of Professor Chen’s broader research agenda focused on the cultural politics of land and of migration.

His previous work has dealt with the National Museum of Immigration History in France, the agrarian movements in Taiwan, the realist cultural movement in postwar Taiwan, and the transformation of the relations between the State and the local society in the political framework of the Republic of China.

This presentation is conducted through the Fulbright Scholar Program’s Outreach Lecturing Fund (OLF). OLF enables Visiting Scholars to share their research interests, speak about their home country, and exchange ideas with U.S. students, faculty, and community organizations. Through these lectures, universities forge relationships with the Fulbright Scholar Program, Visiting Scholars, and the Visiting Scholar’s home and host institutions.
