With a solid grounding in sociological theory, research methods, and local and global knowledge – as well as engagement in the community through a wide array of internships – our students are well prepared for active citizenship and professional careers. Their skills and knowledge open doors to positions in government service, non-profit organizations, media and communications, and non-governmental agencies, as well as graduate study and professional degrees in areas such as law and business.

We offer a wide range of undergraduate courses in the areas of Sociology, Criminal Justice, and Human Services & Social Justice, as well as a minor in Law & Society. Recent course offerings include: Institutional Racism; Contemporary Immigration & the Changing American City; Sociology of the Holocaust & Genocide; Transnational Crime; Political Sociology of South Africa; and Non-Profit & Organizational Management.
